TEMIS Named to KMWorld Magazine's Top 100 List of Companies That Matter in Knowledge Management.

TEMIS is recognized for the second consecutive year for its customer-driven agile innovation.

Philadelphia, PA – March 18, 2008 - TEMIS, leading provider of Text Analytics solutions, today announced that it was named by KMWorld Magazine to its prestigious '100 Companies that Matter' in Knowledge Management for 2008.

Recognizing the top industry influencers in content, document and knowledge management, this 8th edition of the list was compiled by KMWorld colleagues, KM practitioners, theorists, analysts, vendors and their customers.

The '100 Companies that Matter' list recognizes companies that enable an organization to accurately assess its information assets, then maximize their use and reuse in every conceivable manner that promotes sound business.

"We have long held that the true essence of knowledge management is an attitude, a single-minded commitment to improvement. And companies on our list simply must emphasize an abiding determination to serve their most important constituency: their customers. They must also show agile innovation combined with a full understanding of the forces that affect, and will affect, their customers", said Hugh McKellar, Editor-in-Chief of KMWorld magazine.

"We are honored to be recognized by KMWorld for the second consecutive year", said Eric Brégand, CEO of TEMIS. "We are continuously working at increasing the knowledge discovery capabilities of our Information Intelligence solution Luxid®. Luxid® upcoming version 5.0 brings powerful features to extract and deliver knowledge not only to information professionals but also to information analysts and consumers".

Luxid® is a cutting-edge Information Discovery software solution serving the Information Intelligence needs of the Enterprise. This powerful and scalable solution gives immediate access to non obvious information and delivers industry-specific knowledge from internal and external data sources. It brings long-awaited answers to the challenge of information discovery and knowledge extraction from unstructured data, which represent 80% of all data available in the Enterprise for decision-making processes.
